

Environment and Science learning Workshop by BBC Earth

Sony BBC Earth conducted an Environment and Science learning workshop for students under its "Feel Alive Hours" initiative within the school premises. As a part of this learning session they focussed on three different aspects:

- Value based Engagement
- Do-it-Yourself Activity under which they emphasised on growing saplings of trees and taught the technique of making Bonsai.
- A Follow up Quiz based on the environmental videos.

Winners were rewarded with on the spot prizes. Students enthusiastically participated in activities. This unique activity helped to empower and inform the students about the world around them through awareness, understanding and action.
